The involvement of registered osteopath and ergonomic specialist Andrew Wilson (left) and ergonomist Professor Terry Cunniffe (right) in the Work:Science programme represents extensive experience in the ergonomics field. They continue to develop this experience by studying the latest international advances in the area of office ergonomics.

Author of Are you sitting comfortably? and The complete guide to posture at work, Andrew Wilson has a busy osteopathy clinic in Tauranga. He also provides an ergonomic assessment and advisory service and teaches his own workplace assessment system, ‘The OOS Awareness Seminar’, to therapists in New Zealand and Europe. Over the last 10 years, Andrew has studied, written and lectured about posture and ergonomics all over the world.

Professor Terry Cunniffe, a director of ergonomic consultancy company Joll Cunniffe Developments, is one of a small number of certified ergonomists in New Zealand. Terry held the McKenzie chair in Consumer Ergonomics at Massey University and was the foundation President of the New Zealand Ergonomics Society. He has lectured extensively in New Zealand and overseas and has received the New Zealand Commemoration Medal for services to New Zealand. Terry is a Fellow of the Ergonomics Society (UK) and a member of the New Zealand Institute of Safety Management and the Designers Institute of New Zealand.

“Choosing the right tools for the job and creating a healthy, positive work environment supplies the quality of work you can build a company on.”
